W. J. Rime of New Market, the father of one of the boys, came to Maryville today. Mr. Rime was the one to tell the authorities that the boys had a stolen car. He says that his boy never had been in trouble before, but that the Sweeten boy had.

The two boys appeared before Judge Dawson in juvenile court this afternoon and were sentenced to two years in the Missouri Reformatory at Booneville. They will be taken to that place by Sheriff Dowden this evening.

At the hearing this afternoon one of the boy's mother, Mrs. Rime, with her husband, and W. J. Dollahite and Archie Webb of New Market were in attendance.

STATE OF WORLD TRADE ANALYZED

INDICATE PLENTIFUL MEAT SUPPLY BUT SUGAR SHORTAGE.

VITAL SUPPLIES LISTED

Britain Has the Strongest Purchasing Power in Europe—Buyer of Most Meat for Continent.

London, May 24.—The world's shortage of vital supplies may be briefly summarized from British official reports as follows:

Wheat.—No difficulties are expected by England in obtaining sufficient supplies, because the competition for world's supplies will depend upon the purchasing power of European countries, most of whom are forced to restrict purchases far below normal needs owing to lack of credits. For instance, Italy has cut down cereal imports to half those of last year. Britain has the strongest purchasing power in Europe, and it is depreciated by 29 per cent.

Meat.—A glut rather than a shortage of imported meat is expected for England, who, because of her financial position, will be the buyer for most of Europe.

Wool.—No scarcity is expected except for the finer varieties. Australian and New Zealand clips up to the middle of 1920 have been bought by the British Government, and negotiations are proceeding for later supplies.

Paper.—There is a heavy paper-pulp shortage in Norway, Sweden and Canada, the principal producing countries today. This is due to rapid development and enlargment of newspapers since the armistice and the great demand for Canadian pulp in the United States. British papers will soon be forced to reduce their size. Ninety per cent of them already are less than half the size of American newspapers.

Coal.—Production both in England and Continental Europe is under pre-war amount, but there is no question of a serious shortage in England, where exports are controlled and can be limited still further. But the price is mounting, owing to continual wage demands.

Oil.—Supplies are becoming scarce owing to the fact that the war gave great impetus to the motor industry in England. The expected exhaustion of American wells, while affecting Great Britain seriously today, is likely to spur development of British oil industries throughout the world, especially in the Russian Baku, Persian, Mesopotamian and Indian fields. Pewer alcohol also will be distilled.

Sugar.—Great difficulties are expected, owing to non-recovery of production in Central Europe and the uncertainty as to the extent of cane crops this year.

The U. S. department of agriculture has dropped the term "milch cow" in favor of "milk cow."

HEARING FOR INCREASED RAIL RATES OPENED TODAY

Want Just Decision in Petition for Increase to Produce Billion Dollars Additional Revenue.

Washington, May 24.—The railroads today entered a plea for prompt and a just decision in their petition for rate increase that will produce more than a billion dollars additional revenue at a formal hearing opened by the Interstate Commerce Commission. Howard Elliott, spokesman for the association of the railway executives, presented the case of the carriers and laid before the commission much data showing transportation needs and the necessity for more revenue to sustain the roads.

The newly created labor board now has before it requests for increases in pay amounting to a billion dollars per year. The interstate commerce commission has been given power to determine the second great question which involves obtaining for the roads for service rendered not less than one billion, seventeen million added revenue, if the roads are to be sustained. This latter sum is necessary to meet the present basis of wages, costs, interest sum for dividends, and improvements are not considered in any part of the billion needed yearly now under consideration by the labor board.

THINGS THAT COUNT.

Not what we have but what we use;
Not what we see but what we choose—
These are the things that mar or bless
The sum of human happiness.

The things near by, not things afar;
Not what we seem but what we are—
These are the things that make or break,
That give the heart its joy or ache.

Not what seems fair but what is true;
Not what we dream but what we do—
These are the things that shine like gems,
Like stars in fortune's diadems.

Not as we take but as we give;
Not as we take but as we live—
These are the things that make for peace.
Both now and after time shall cease.
—The Outlook.

MADE HIS ESCAPE QUICKLY

Her First Husband's Time of Tribulation So Short as to Be Hardly Worth Mentioning.

The marriage registrar called "Come in!" and they came in. They consisted of 95 per cent woman to 5 per cent man, and the registrar's heart was smitten with pity.

"We want to get married, if you please!" said the small man behind the large button-hole.

The registrar gave a side glance at the portly dimensions of the would-be bride.

"Have you ever been married before?" he asked the very small man.

"No, sir," replied the little fellow, in a hopeful voice."

"And you, madam," inquired the registrar, "is this also your first venture?"

"Well, not exactly," answered the dame. "You see, my first 'usband jumped off the roof after we'd been married only two days, so he really ain't worth mentionin'."—London Tit-Bits.

More Odd Names.

The roll call of odd names that was published in a recent number of the Companion has prompted a subscriber to send us a few additional oddities that have happened to come to his notice.

John Spittler, he says, was a tobacconist; A. W. Soper was a barber, and B. Kornman of course was a chiropodist. On the other hand, the Clay Real Estate company did not limit its activities to one variety of soil, but dealt impartially in all, while Professor Fidler, although a music teacher, made the voice and not the violin his specialty. Mrs. Toothacher, whom fate appeared to have marked for a profession of dentistry, completely missed her vocation by becoming a dressmaker; nor was Mr. Drinkwater a teetotaler.—Youth's Companion.

Most Illustrious Corpse.

The Dorset (England) village of Worth Maltravers, which is to be sold by auction, has few claims to fame. The most illustrious corpse in its churchyard seems to be that of one Benjamin Jesty, who died in 1816, and who was the first person who introduced the cow-pox by inoculation, and who from his great strength of mind made the experiment from the cow on his wife and two sons in the year 1774. Most readers will agree with Sir Frederick Treve's comment that "the epitaph says nothing of the greater strength of mind shown by the wife and two sons in submitting themselves to this hazard, nor how it came to pass that the iron-minded Benjamin did not first try the experiment upon himself."

ITS PURPOSE.

While waiting for his train the young man amused himself with the various slot machines. At last he came to one which did not respond to the penny he deposited.

"Look here!" he said to a porter who was standing by, "I've tried my strength on one machine and I've tried my weight on another, but what's this apparatus? I've put in a penny and got nothing."

"Oh," responded the porter, "that's to try your temper."—Boston Transcript.

Esperanto Bible.

Esperantists will learn with interest that the unpublished MS. of the late Dr. L. L. Zamenhof's translation from the Hebrew into Esperanto has been successfully transferred from Warsaw to England, and that it is to be published jointly by the British and Foreign society and the National Bible society of Scotland. For some years the new testament has been available, thanks to the labors of the Rev. J. Cyprian Rust (Soham, Cambridgeshire), and the same Esperanto expert is at the head of the revision committee which has undertaken the reading over of the Old Testament.

Opposing Advantage.

"There is one queer thing about the movies."

"What is it?"

"That a speaking face in an actor fits him for the silent drama."

War History One Inch Square.

A popular novelty now sold in the streets of London is a little book, a history of the great war, which measures about an inch square.

Missouri is the Bluegrass State

According to an article by John F. Case in last week's Missouri Ruralist, Nodaway County raises a quality of bluegrass seed. He also says that probably the most bluegrass seed owned by any one man or firm in Missouri grows on the Bilby ranch, near Skidmore. His article follows:

The best bluegrass seed in the world grows in Missouri. Kentuckians no doubt will dispute this assertion, but there is abundant proof that it is true. Kentucky dealers buy thousands of bushels of Missouri Bluegrass seed every year and mix it with their home product in order to increase the weight for export shipment. The legal weight of bluegrass seed is 14 pounds to the bushel, but much of the seed in Missouri weighs from 25 to 30 pounds. Weight and germinating quality is the test of good bluegrass seed.

E. F. Speers & Son of Paris, Ky., the largest buyers, estimate that 150,000 bushels of bluegrass seed is a good average crop in Missouri. Berryman & Maupin of King City are perhaps our largest buyers of this product. A. P. Maupin has been gathering and buying bluegrass seed for 16 years and he told me that the four Northwest Missouri counties, Holt, Gentry, Nodaway and Dekalb, probably produce 100,000 bushels of the total amount. The harvest of bluegrass seed usually begins the first week in June and lasts thruout the month. Of all the years Mr. Maupin has been engaged in business 1912 was the best. Altho 4 bushels of seed to the acre is considered a good crop, in 1912 many fields made 10 bushels to the acre. During that year Berryman & Maupin handled 100,000 bushels of bluegrass seed and they gathered 30,000 bushels of this amount themselves. Four cars of bluegrass seed were sent from King City to Germany in 1912 and 1913. One car exported was an especially fancy lot weighing 30 pounds to the bushel and the German dealer wrote that it was the best seed he ever had hauled.

Altho the best yields of bluegrass seed always come in dry seasons there was a short crop in the dry years of 1913 and 1914. The reason for this was late frosts that killed the head after it had been formed. No one in Missouri makes a business of growing bluegrass simply for the seed—it is strictly a sideline with Missouri farmers. Altho a comparatively small price is paid, usually about 1.50 an acre where the seed is stripped by the buyer, it is all clear profit. This is the way the grower and buyer figure it out. If the grass is thin on the ground it will not pay to strip; if thick enough to gather enough seed will go back to the ground to reseed it. Mr. Maupin does not think he ever has damaged a field by gathering the seed.

Bluegrass seed is gathered with a header made especially for that purpose. The machines commonly used are very simple in construction and many farmers make their own headers, using parts of a discarded mowing machine or reaper. A cylinder covered with spikes tears the seed from the grass and deposits it in a large box or trough attached to the machine. These cylinders average about 20 inches in diameter and are geared for a high speed. One machine drawn by a team of horses will strip about 10 acres of grass a day.

Every year Barryman & Maupin send a force of men with machines and teams to the bluegrass fields. Last season they had about 40 headers in operation. The outfits are divided, about 15 men going with a battery of 10 machines. Mr. Maupin and Mr. Berryman take the field themselves and competent foremen are in charge of the remaining outfits. Every outfit has a cook wagon and tent and altho the work is hard young fellows are eager to go. It's a fine time of year for camping out and the boys have a lot of fun during the three weeks they are together. While a good many farmers have machines of their own and strip their pastures, selling the seed at from 40 cents to 60 cents a bushel, more of them prefer to sell by the acre. This is especially true of those who plant a large acreage of corn, for cultivation comes during grass seed harvest. Probably the most bluegrass seed owned by any one man or firm in Missouri grows on the Bilby Ranch near Skidmore in Nodawawy county. Barryman & Maupin have stripped these pastures for several years and always get several thousand bushels of seed. "In 1912," said Mr. Maupin, "we had 1½ acres of pasture land covered with drying seed, all gathered on the Bilby ranch."

As the seed is stripped it is removed from the machine and placed in burlap bags. Each bag holds 5 bushels and when full is placed on a wagon. It is the duty of the wagon man to haul these bags to the drying yards (simply a clean, close-clipped square of perhaps an acre in some pasture) and help spread the seed to dry and cure. Over this ground the seed is spread to a depth of 6 to 12 inches depending upon condition of the seed and the weather. Men keep stirring and forking the seed until the action of sun and wind has thoroly cured it. This curing is the particular part of the job for if not rightly done there will be poor germination. Much of the success of the King City firm has come from the personal supervision of A. P. Maupin, who knows just when the seed is ready to go to the warehouse. Once thoroly cured it is sacked again and is ready for the cleaner.

The Berryman & Maupin property at King City consists of a seed house and about 2 acres of ground. This plot is used as a drying yard for the seed delivered or shipped direct to the firm. During the seed season hundreds of boys and girls and a few women and men living within driving distance of King City gather seed by hand. In 1912, Berryman & Maupin paid more than $1,000 for hand stripped seed and several hundred dollars' worth was brought in last year. The hand strippers can be bought cheaply. The wage made depends of course upon the yield and price, which varies, but the little chaps who hustle make not less than $1.50 a day and the older boys clean up $2.50 to $3.50. A man with team and wagon often makes as much as $7.50 in a day's gathering. This seed is stripped along roadsides, in pastures too small for machines—any place where it grows in paying quantity.

All the seed handled by Berryman & Maupin is cleaned at King City warehouse. They have two of the largest cleaning machines made. One important step in the process of cleaning is the passage of the seed thru a large revolving drum provided with many wings or partitions. This separates the seed from all foreign matter and where the pastures are free from weeds and the drying yards kept clean very little trash accumulates. The seed, bright, clean and attractive—is then graded. Berryman & Maupin put up a special brand of seed that weighs 30 pounds to the bushel and sells at about 20 cents a pound. One October they shipped a car of this high-class seed to a firm at Minneapolis that paid $6,200 for the lot.

In addition to their bluegrass seed business, which is the most important Berryman & Maupin conduct a general seed house having put up a commodious building in 1912. They buy timothy, clover and alfalfa seed but none of it comes from the bluegrass territory. They are selling more alfalfa seed every year, tho, and the acreage of this legume is rapidly increasing in North Missouri. Another home product that is being shipped out in large quantities is purebred seed corn. The state and local corn shows have resulted in growing high-grade seed corn on nearly every farm in Northwest Missouri.

The bluegrass pastures, purebred livestock and good seed corn are a profit-making combination is proved by the price of land in the territory Berryman & Maupin get their seed from. Few improved farms, no matter what the location may be, can be purchased for less than $150 an acre and most of them sell at from $200 to $300 an acre. Mighty good dirt in Northwest Missouri, but at that there should be more alfalfa as well as the honor of holding the bluegrass championship.

"EVANGELINE" HAD A NARROW ESCAPE.

"Evangeline," the immortal poem by Henry Wawsworth Longfellow, which William Fox will present in motion picture form at the Empire Theater on tomorrow and Wednesday came very near reaching the public under another title.

"Gabrielle," "Celestine" and "Evangeline" were the three titles under consideration by the poet when he was putting his new tale into hexameter form.

Longfellow finally settled upon the title, "Evangeline, a Tale of Arcadie," the name under which the poem will live forever.

LOVE MIRACLE

By AUGUSTUS G. SHERWIN

(Copyright, 1920, Western Newspaper Union.)

She was a blooming widow of thirty-five and looked ten years younger. When she appeared at the home of her closest friend, Mrs. Ross Ewing, at Exmoor, the latter truthfully told her that she seemed as far from wrinkles as when she had first known her in girlhood.

"You certainly must have discovered the fountain of youth, Laurette," familiarly observed Mrs. Ewing. "Four years a widow, and many girl of eighteen would envy your dazzling beauty. What is the secret of your growing charm?"

"Love," softly and with a certain degree of shyness whispered Laurette Winthrop. She blushed, but soon regained the poise that ever distinguished her as a woman not afraid of telling the truth and entirely devoid of any silly affectation. "And why not my dear? It was quite a home-made match—my marriage with poor dear Alvin—one of convenience brought about by our respective families. He was an honest, good natured, kindly fellow, who indulged all my whims and whom I thought enough of to respect and never quarrel with. We got along nicely, without any gush or pretense, and when he died I missed him more than I can tell. But that is all past now. There have been four lonely years. Two years ago I met a man I shall never forget, nor he me, I truly believe. There came illness for him and he became a changed man. We drifted apart because he became a perfect hypochondriac in his ailment—lost all interest in life, sank into a hermitlike mood and sent me word that as a broken man he could have no hopes that our pleasant friendship could continue."

"And you still love him?"

"I can help him—that is why I come to you. His physician says he needs someone to rouse him from his lethargy. While he has grown thin and pale and ambitionless, his doctor says half of his indisposition is imagination, pure and simple."

"Who is he, Laurette?"

"His name is Irvin Throop."

"Why! It cannot be he who last week took the Morton place near the lake?"

"The same," replied Laurette. "And therefore I have come to you, who are a revivifying force wherever you exert your influence. You rule unquestioned in Exmoor here. What you promulgate is law, with ready aids at command to carry out what you design. You can bring Irvin Throop out of his dark mood, you can help me lead him back to the love for me which has changed to his morbid fear for himself."

Mrs. Ewing looked startled, puzzled and essentially inquisitive. "You see," continued Laurette, "at Paxton Mr. Throop was coddled, sympathized with and made to believe that he was in a dying condition. The doctor insisted that he must get a change. It took him no further than locating here. If the same system of tactics is kept up, it will do him no good. Through your wise womanly ways he should be a ready subject. This is what I have thought out," and Laurette confidentially imparted to her closest friend just what she had thought out.

"I am going back to Paxton," said Laurette. "I can hardly stay here to have his relatives say that I am chasing him down."

"But I can invite you here, after awhile."

"Yes, when you have rescued the invalid from his gloom and melancholy."

"And he views you with the old time bright eyes?" smiled Mrs. Ewing. "I think time will work the charm, dear."

"In your skilled hands, surely!" replied Laurette with confidence.

They had humored the whims of the notional patient at Paxton and the dolorous atmosphere surrounding him had made of Irving Throop a confirmed misanthrope. A case of nerves had grown into a bugaboo of fancy and dread.

Mrs. Ewing had summoned and posted her emissaries. It was something of a novelty and stimulant to Irvin Throop to have people meet him and treat him as if he was a normal fellow creature instead of a confirmed invalid, a physical wreck. No one condoled with him, no one told him he looked pale and weak. Everybody hailed him with cheery, friendly greeting. He was ashamed to mention his ailments to people who apparently observed no trace of them in his bearing.

The fair plotter, Mrs. Ewing, fairly led, dragged and held him in a new social bondage that began to interest him. She coaxed him into tennis. He was an excellent player and believed the compliments he received as to his expertness in the sport.

In fact, within a month Irvin Throop was a new being. There was no time for moping among the jolly group who were determined to win him back to seeing only the bright side of life. One day he wrote to Laurette, telling her of his recovery. The bridge was passed. Laurette knew that she had triumphed.

"There was only this to round out the world's sweetness," he whispered to Mrs. Ewing the day she sent for Laurette, who, strolling among the flowers in the garden, was regarded raptly by her old time and now new lover.

"Go and tell her so," advised the artful plotter.

HERE'S THE RIGHT WAY OF MIXING CHEAP CAKES.

If your experience has been that cheap cakes have a poor flavor and a course texture it is because you have not been putting them together in the right way. An inexpensive cake requires careful mixing. No difficulty should be experienced in compounding a cake which is excellent in texture and has a delicious flavor when plenty of eggs and butter are available. It is when it is necessary to economize on these expensive materials that the cook who is not skillful has her troubles.

Food specialists in the home economics kitchen of the United States Department of Agriculture have been making extensive investigations in cake baking, especially in the baking of one-egg cakes. Their experiments with cheap cakes show that the best results are obtained when the batter is beaten very little after the baking powder is added and when the cake is baked in a very slow oven.

The recipe which was used in the experiments follows:

3 level tablespoons fat.
½ cup granulated sugar.
½ to 2-3 cup milk.
1½ cups flour.
2½ teaspoons baking powder.
1 teaspoon vanilla.
1 egg.

Cream fat and sugar together, add beaten egg and beat thoroughly. Then add flour and liquid alternately, about one-third of each at a time. Beat the batter thoroughly after all flour and liquid have been added. Vanilla may be added during this beating. Last of all scatter the baking powder over the surface of the batter and fold it in lightly with six or eight motions of the spoon so as to get it thoroughly mixed with every part of the batter. Do not beat the batter after adding the baking powder but turn it at once into a cake pan and bake.

The cake can be put together by other methods than the one described above. Any approved method may be selected, but the two points which give the most difficulty are the too vigorous beating of the batter after the baking powder has been added, and baking the loaf in too hot an oven.

WHAT NEXT?

The preceding articles have been but a brief outline of the rise and progress of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union. Now that we have prohibition, why longer keep up our organization?

As I said in my last, no where can you get better training for citizenship than with us. As a social club there is none better or more uplifting. As a religious factor in our lives, nowhere have we learned the secret of fellowship with our Father and with our brothers and sisters without thought of sectarian or secular interest, than in this hallowed place of prayers, the meetings of the W. C. T. U. And the many lines of work among foreigners, lumbermen, sailors and soldiers, rescue work, prevention, by having women at the stations, on the coasts, everywhere the white slaver prosecutes his work, reformatory, in our police matrons, prison and penitentiary his work. Our social programs consist in the celebrating our Red Letter Days Flower Mission, Parlor meetings, etc., that are just as influential for good now as in the old days. Legislation needs looking after yet, though we have had many great reforms in that department, through our Superintendent of that work. The one most outstanding was, raising the age of a girl when she could consent to her own ruin and thus let the seducer go free. It was raised from the age of seven in Delaware and ten to twelve in a majority of other states, to the ages of sixteen and eighteen. Missouri was raised from the mature age of ten to sixteen. We have a lady statesman at Washington who keeps in touch with legislation and gives us weekly, in the Union Signal, a resume of what is being done for or against the causes for which we stand. In our legislative work, petitions have formed a large part, from the Memorial carried by Frances E. Willard to the National Conventions of all the parties in 1884 and which was tossed under the table in one of them and covered with tobacco juice, to the monster one begun in 1875 with two million signatures gathered from every nationality and presented to the government first. Frances E. Willard said of it, that in no way can the same amount of effort be turned to better account in unifying and forwarding the reforms which are of equal importance to all nations of the earth, and predicted the time "when the war drums throb no longer, and the battle flags are furled, in the parliament of Man, the Federation of the World!" We think Miss. Willard would have boosted mightily for the League of Nations.

Petitions are good when there is nothing better, but the ballot in the hands of educated Christian women will bring sooner the day of blessing we still hope and pray for.

AUDITORIUM PLANNED AS MEMORIAL TO HARVARD DEAD

Will Be a Permanent Memorial to the Three Hundred and Fifty Harvard Men Killed in War.

Cambridge, Mass., May 22.—Plans are now being considered for a permanent Harvard war memorial in honor of the 350 Harvard men who lost their lives in the war against Germany.

A special committee of the governing boards of the university has the matter under consideration. This committee consists of President Lowell, Judge Robert Grant, '73, president of the board of overseers; William C. Boyden, '86; W. Cameron Forbes, '92; Thomas W. Lamont, '92; Dr. William S. Thayer, '85; General Leonard Wood, '83, and Dean L. B. R. Briggs, '75.

No decision has yet been reached by the committee. A number of suggestions have been made, however, and that which up to this time seems to have met with most favor is the proposal that the permanent memorial should take the form of a large university auditorium to be used for the Commencement Day alumni exercises and upon other notable occasions.

The committee has delayed taking definite action with regard to the memorial in order to conflict with the plans of the Harvard endowment fund committee, believing that it would not be wise to attempt to raise funds for the memorial while the endowment fund campaign is in progress.

The committee has expressed its readiness to consider suggestions advanced by graduates and other friends of the university.

NAMED AFTER ENGLISH CITIES

Boston and Lynn, Massachusetts, Are Neighbors Here as They Are Across the Water.

The oldest place bearing the name Lynn is Lynn Regis, or King's Lynn, to give the English meaning of the Latin word "regis." It is a town of about 20,000 inhabitants still possessing considerable commerce but a place of importance three centuries and more ago, when it was often visited by kings. It is a seaport of Norfolk county, England, situated on the Great Ouse river not far from the Wash, which is a great bay indenting the east coast of England. Lynn Regis is near the south side of the Wash and directly across the Wash is the ancient city of Boston.

In early colonial times a settlement sprang up near Boston, Mass., to which was given the Indian name, Saugus. In 1636 a minister named Samuel Whiting came to Saugus, and from that time until his death in 1679 he was the pastor of the congregation. He was born and brought up in Lynn Regis, Norfolk, England, and a year after his arrival at Saugus the name of the settlement was changed to Lynn in honor of the pastor's birthplace. And so Boston in the New World came to have a Lynn as a neighbor, just as ancient Boston in England has Lynn Regis a neighbor across the waters of the Wash.

INTELLIGENCE OF HIGH ORDER

Remarkable Stories of Sagacity Shown by Animals in Connection With the Great War.

The high intelligence of horses was superbly demonstrated during the war, and some day a lover of the horse will collate the many wonderful incidents in which he played a leading part. One of these will be the vagaries of a Canadian general's thoroughbred, which again and again refused to budge to the spur at times when there was apparently no evidence of the slightest danger. Twice he saved his master's life by deliberate acts of insubordination. The latest yarn about a pony that had a race-track reputation is worth repeating in this connection. Every morning its owner brought this pony into the dining room of the house in which the narrator was billeted, and fed him round the table. The pony was offered all sorts of dainties, but he would only touch slices of bread and butter, of which he was inordinately fond. It was not a big room, and there was not much space between the wall and the table, so if he had shown any restlessness the table and all that was on it must have been demolished. He, however, behaved always with the manners of a retriever dog, and only the slices of bread and butter had to be replenished.

Helgoland Dismantled.

A dispatch from Berlin to the Associated Press states that the Helgoland defenses are today dismantled. The island and its thousands of tons of masonry and gun emplacements is all that remains of this once most formidable fortress. With the guns dismantled, the destruction of the military harbor works and various fortifications has proceeded. Although this stronghold cost over 175 million dollars, its guns were fired but once throughout the war, when the British warship Shannon was the target. The allies recognized that it would have been impossible to silence its batteries. The artificial harbor works and the ground on which the barracks stand are to be removed and the site returned to the sea.—Scientific American.

Statue to Balboa.

Panama is to have a statue of Balboa, the discoverer of the Pacific ocean. The contract for the work has already been signed at Madrid, and the monument has been intrusted to the sculptor Benilliure. That there is to be no undue haste in the matter is signified by the fact that the contract does not call for the delivery of the monument until two years after the signing of the agreement. The opportunities for a most effective piece of work are many, with the likeness of the man overlooking the ocean of his discovery. The grandiose setting would seem to call for a grandiose actor to dominate the scene.

Demand for Change.

The total number of coins of American money produced in 1919 was 738,542,000 and their value was $20,777,000. They included 3,679,000 half dollars, 15,104,000 quarters, 54,529,000 dimes, 76,395,000 five-cent pieces and 588,935,000 pennies.

NODAWAY COUNTY FARMERS BEHIND WITH SPRING WORK.

"I cannot recall a season when we have been backward with our farm work as this spring," declared Ira Wells of Nodaway county, Mo., at the yards here today with a 2-car shipment of hogs. "The rains have not only delayed plowing and corn planting, but it has been so wet and muddy we couldn't hardly set fence posts. Because of so much moisture in the ground some are predicting a good season for corn, but for my part I prefer a dry spring and the good rains distributed along in July and August." T. R. Livengood and E. R. Bailey, representative stock farmers of the same locality here with hogs today, report corn planting nearly 2 weeks behind in their community, where the crop usually is up by this time.—St. Joseph Stock Yards Journal.

Salt the Fleas to Death.

Last year was an unusually bad year for fleas about houses. The time is again at hand when, though the voice of the flea may not be heard in the land, his tickling will be felt in the flesh—unless the simple preventive is applied. Fleas unusually get into the house from the basement or some place where dogs or other animals have slept. Make a thorough clean-up. Then sprinkle the floor well with salt and wet it down—not wet enough to cause it to run. It may be necessary to repeat this treatment two or three times at intervals of about three days.

Hereafter it will be "milk cow" and not "milch cow." This decision of Secretary of Agriculture Meredith marks the termination of a controversy in which etymologists in the department have had not a little interest. Those in favor of sticking to "milch cow" cite the Bible and other good English books. Friends of "milk cow" argue that milkmen, cattlemen and others in every day touch with cows prefer that form. The deciding argument, it is said, was that "milk" is "more strictly an English word, while 'milch' was akin to German."

YOU can reduce the cost of living by the use of labor saving devices. Labor under present conditions is not only high priced, but hard to obtain.

An electric washing machine, an electric sweeper, an electric grill, an electric iron, or an electric range will soon save its first cost in actual cash, not to mention the extra satisfaction of work well done.

Where Gasoline Prices Stand

OIL products have advanced in price more slowly than any other products. The U. S. Department of Labor, in a comparative statement of price advances between January 1913, and December 1919, says:

(In the following table 100 is taken as the normal base for 1913)

	Jan. 1913 Prices	Dec. 1919 Prices	Increase or decrease
Cloths and Clothing	100	335	235 %
House Furnishings	100	303	203 %
Labor and building material	100	253	153 %
Farm produce	97	244	151.5%
Food	99	234	136.3%
Chemicals	101	179	77.2%
Fuel and lighting	103	181	75.7%
Metals and metal products	107	169	58 %

(Monthly Labor Review, Vol. X, No. 5)

On January 1, 1913, the Standard Oil Company (Indiana) was paying $1.44 per barrel for crude delivered at the refinery at Whiting, Ind., and was selling gasoline for 14½c per gallon.

On December 31, 1919, the price of crude had advanced to $3.51 per barrel, f. o. b. Whiting, and the selling price of gasoline to 21c per gallon.

In other words this Company is paying two and one-half times as much for crude oil as it was in 1913, but because of its more efficient refining methods it is able to sell gasoline to you for less than one-half more than was charged at that time.

(Continuing the table)

Crude Petroleum	100	240	140 %
Red Crown Gasoline	100	144.8	44.8%

It will be seen from the above tables that gasoline stands at the end of the list as regards price increase, and that crude petroleum stands sixth from the end, showing how effectually refining efficiency has operated in behalf of the motorist.

Every cost entering into the making of gasoline has risen immensely. The cost of crude, the cost of refining, and the cost of marketing are all greater than ever before.

The Standard Oil Company (Indiana) by superior efficiency in every process of refining and distributing has contributed in no small degree to hold the price of gasoline down to its present level. Every man in the manufacturing end of the Standard Oil Company (Indiana) is keenly alive to the pressing necessity for an increased output of gasoline at a minimum manufacturing cost.

The ideal toward which the Standard Oil Company (Indiana) is striving, is to put Red Crown, a gasoline of known, standard quality, within the reach of motorists everywhere in the Middle West, at a price so low as to make possible the free use of that 25 percent increase in automotive vehicles which is anticipated for 1920.

STATE WHEAT CROP FOUR WEEKS BEHIND SCHEDULE

Spring Plowing Delayed and Wheat Made Little Progress on Account of Cool Weather.

Jefferson City, Mo., May 24.—Missouri crops are three to four weeks behind, according to the estimates prepared by E. A. Logan of the bureau of crop estimates of the United States department of agriculture, and Jewell Mayes of the Missouri state board of agriculture. According to their estimates, 232,200 acres of wheat has been abandoned; the increase in meadow lands is 225,000; the condition of oats is 80 per cent of normal; and spring plowing is only 45 per cent completed. The estimate of winter wheat is 20,937,000 bushels on 2,348,000 acres of land as against 57,699,000 bushels on 4,274,000 acres last year.

Missouri wheat made little progress during April on account of cool weather and lack of sunshine. Its condition is estimated at 75 per cent, as against 70 per cent April 1.

Hay condition is 90 per cent as against 87 per cent a year ago. Acreage of hay has increased 8 per cent over last year, but has not yet returned to pre-war acreage.

The acreage of oats is 2 per cent greater than last year. Livestock deaths in Missouri in the last year were the result, among horses and cattle principally of exposure and feed shortage; among sheep, of unusual diseases and lack of care, and the Easter storm brought heavy losses among lambs and pigs. The condition of horses and mules is 93 per cent, cattle, 91, sheep 90 and hogs 92.

Fruit prospects in Missouri are described as "spotted," with apples and peaches nearly all killed in many places in the southern section of the state, while in the northern half of Missouri has not suffered so severely. Cherries and pears are in good condition generally, not damaged by frosts.

BABY NAMED LYDIA E.

Because Her Mother Was Made Well by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Brooklyn, N. Y.—"I could not write all my thanks for your blessed medicine, Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I was in a very bad condition and had lost two babies. One of my good friends told me about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and after I had taken eight or ten bottles I felt like a different woman. I kept on taking it until my baby girl was born last month and we have had her christened Lydia Elizabeth. I wish you to publish my letter to benefit other women who are suffering as I was."—Mrs. Katherine Kurzbacker, 1086 Manhattan Avenue, Brooklyn, N. Y.

Women who suffer from any feminine ailment should not lose hope until they have tried Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

The many convincing testimonials constantly published in the newspapers ought to be proof enough for women who suffer from those distressing ills peculiar to their sex that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is the medicine they need.
